Christopher Capobianco of Patchogue, Long Island, has been named chairman of the Floor Covering Installation Contractors Association (FCICA) after the recent resignation of previous chairman Jonathan Stewart.

Capobianco grew up in the industry and at 46 years of age has already racked up over a quarter-century of flooring retail service; he also recently launched an industry advisory firm, Flooring Answers.

"My immediate goal is to raise the visibility of the FCICA so the industry knows who we are – a trade association of commercial floor covering contractors with over $800 million in sales."

Stewart was recently elected chairman of the FCICA at a March convention taking place in Isla Verde, Puerto Rico. Less than two weeks after his appointment he resigned to pursue outside interests.

FCICA board members serve a three year term and are elected at FCICA's annual convention by members in good standing.

For more information on the FCICA call (248) 661-5015 or visit <http://www.fcica.com/>. Also, learn more about Flooring Answers by calling (631) 275-6494 or visiting www.FlooringAnswers.com.
